

JINKS IS ALWAYS MAKING SOME BAD BREAK.

SPORT Snap-Shots

Connie Mack's group of pill promoters have averaged almost six runs to a game. In the first sixty-one games they scored 404 runs, all of them of course not being earned but a big percentage of the runs were the result of lousy errors. And yet it isn't so surprising. Consider this quietest of suggestions: let your eye dwell on the following list of fence busters: Frank Baker, Eddie Collins, Jack Barry, Ruben Olding and Jack McNamara. Enough to send a southerner raging over the Baker is no doubt. Of the bunch Baker is the most vicious with the club and thus far in the season his swats have netted sixty-two runs for the Mackmen. Baker stands a very fair chance, indeed, of winning that Chalmers machine that has been offered to the player who does the greatest work for his team. And Frank has been earning his salary. "Stuffy" McInnis next to Baker has put over more runs than any of his teammates, having some fifty marked up to his credit. Collins, Olding and Barry follow in order. But all the rest of the team for the matter have by no means been idle at the bat as any opposing pitcher must admit. In the matter of making the trip around the White Sulphur are right clever.

They figure this Mathewson lad who is pitching for the New York will just about be in his prime in seven or eight years. It has been pretty generally agreed that as a baseball pitcher Christy Mathewson is in a class by himself. Speaking by and large and altogether er, he is the hurling marvel of the day. Perhaps of the history of the game. Present day players insist that Mathewson never has and never will have an equal. The greatest pitching record ever put over was old Cy Young's, who pitched twenty-two seasons of major league ball, winning 567 games and losing 321. A percentage of .612. Mathewson thus far has worked thirteen seasons in the big show and has won 358 games, losing 149 and has accumulated a percentage of .702. To equal or distance Cy Young's record Matty will have to work nine more years and win 179 games or more. And he'll do it easily they tell us. "It's because he takes the game so easily," says an American league star. "He plays for the pure love of it. No worrying with him, no sore arms. It's little wonder that he's so good. Why, right now nine years he'll be just in his prime. And then look out for him."

According to some very reliable and worthy informants, it would immensely become that pugilistic pariah, John Arthur Johnson, to assume an expression of disconcertion and an air of unfeigned annoyance. Unless the dope is all wrong, Jack is going to be very, very much bored by two of his cuffed brethren who at present are intent upon hunting down Arthur and trouncing him to the best of their ability. And there is some reason to believe that they have a whole lot of ability. We are speaking of course, of Sam Langford and Joe Jeannette. There is no hope of one of our white hopes coming to the ring with them. Gunboat Smith, Pecky and Willy, the whole three together would scarcely exert Sam or Joe. Jack Johnson will have to fight sooner or later and as he may dislike it and it'll be Langford or Jeannette or more likely both. Jeannette and Langford will battle in New York in September and the winner will have the first crack at Lil Artha. And Johnson will have to meet him much as he may dislike the prospect.

CARDINALS TO FACE BELOIT MOOSE AGAIN

Butters Will Hunt For Cards. While Blodgett Will Take the Mound For Beloit, At West Park Tomorrow. It is up to Butters tomorrow to pitch to the best of his ability, if he expects to defeat these Beloit Moose. The game will be played at West park. So far this season, the Cards have won two games from the Moose, while they have in turn been defeated two games. This will be the last game perhaps between these two teams this year. The Cards fought with them in the last struggle, at the Grocers' picnic, the Moose winning in ten innings, one to nothing. Butters was opposed by Blodgett, tomorrow's Beloit hope, and it was a stiff struggle. Butters is in rare form now, and he is sure to win his game, if the Cards hit. From the looks of things, they are taking a slump with the sick, because Thursday they received but four hits off Crandall. But we must remember, that Crandall is an exceptional hurler, Blodgett being easy in comparison to him. The Cards will line up as follows: Ryan, 3b; Sullivan, rf; Porter, lf; Hill, ss; Butters, p; Nehr, cf; Stewart, 2b; Barger, 1b; Wilson, c.

CALLAHAN IS TO BE FIRED, SAYS RUMOR

Jimmy Callahan (top) and Johnny Evers.

According to late rumors from Chicago, Jimmy Callahan, leader of the White Sox, stands a good chance of losing his job soon. He's in a losing streak and the fans are after his scalp. Rumors are also growing stronger that Johnny Evers, manager of the Cubs, is to be deposed at least by the end of the year.

KENOSHA MEN PLAY FOR GOLF HONORS

Cavanagh and Anderson Contend For Supremacy Today. Baumann in Handicap Semi-Finals. Dick Cavanagh and Jimmie Anderson, both Kenosha men, contended for the Wisconsin golf championship on the Kenosha links today. Although Anderson has been the surprise and sensation of the tournament the odds were in favor of Cavanagh in the thirty-six hole final match. In the handicap committee cup final E. C. Baumann of Janesville, got into the semi-finals by two defaults. A. Schaller of Janesville and W. A. Bell of Kenosha, defeated their opponents in the four ball foursome match yesterday.

OLD CHIEF BENDER IS A STRONG CANDIDATE FOR CHALMERS TROPHY IN AMERICAN LEAGUE; IS MACK'S PITCHING MAINSTAY

Several years ago the Chalmers Automobile Company of Detroit offered a prize of two of their cars to those men, one in the National, one in the American, who should lead their leagues in hitting. Later the conditions of the contest were changed so as to present the cars to those men, "of the most benefit to their teams during the course of the season."

Earlier in the year, the names of Walter Johnson of the Washington club and of Joe Jackson of the Cleveland team, were most often on the lips of American league fans, when discussions as to who should get the trophy came up. But Johnson is not doing as well as he did, and Jackson is only a bitter. Now the name of Bender, the Indian twirler for the Philadelphia Athletics, is most often mentioned. Almost unaided in the box—except for Eddie Plank—he has maintained the Philadelphia team in the top-most rank on its mad race for league honors. Mack has been pitching him at least once in every three days and on each occasion Bender has gone in willing to pitch his arm off if necessary to bring victory to his team. One year ago it was whispered about the circuit that the big Indian was sliding and that his days in the shade of the big top were numbered. But the reason was not that his pitching arm had lost any of its cunning. His whip was still as resiliant as a steel spring but the body behind it, and the mind, were rapidly refusing to do their work because of the Indian's inherent taste for the much-loved fire-water. As a result his playing was mediocre.

MANY GIRLS ATTEND SWIMMING LESSONS; WILL HAVE OUTING

Dates Set for Girls Picnic and Boys Outing at Lake Koshkonong.—Will Hold Meet. Forty-eight girls attended the first swimming instructions held this morning under the direction of Mr. Finley, supervisor at the Jefferson school playgrounds, at the Goose Island Swimming Beach. By the kindness of E. W. Holmes the girls were provided with a dressing tent and Mr. Finley was aided in his work by Misses Bessie Buell, Julia Lovejoy and Lavane Bowerman. This morning the girls were instructed in the first principles of swimming and were given lessons in the easy strokes. A few of the more bolder ones managed to gather enough courage to try diving off the spring board. It is expected that there will be a much larger attendance at the next lessons which will be held on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

On Wednesday the twentieth the girls will close the first year of play ground work with a big picnic at Lake Koshkonong. All the girls of both playgrounds will leave for the lake on the early morning train and will take a basket dinner. It is ascertained that the boys of the play grounds will hold a three days camp at Lake Koshkonong beginning on the twenty-second of this month and they will return on the twenty-fourth. Enough funds have been pledged to make the financial end of the matter and the youngsters are anxiously awaiting for the time to come for their outing. The efficiency test of all the boys in the city will take place August twenty-seventh at the Jefferson playgrounds. Prizes in the form of badges will be awarded to the winners of the various athletic events and to even up the contest, the races and tests will be run under three sections, each boy qualifying for one of the three prizes to receive an honor badge. The second boys water meet will take place Friday morning the thirteenth. Mr. Finley hopes to secure the use of a barge from which the prizes will start from in their races. The winners of the events of this meet will also be awarded to the winners of the events of this meet. The parents and public will be asked to attend the meet so as to demonstrate the work that has been accomplished since the starting of the swimming lessons. The Webster boys between the ages of twelve and fourteen gave the Jefferson boys of the same age, a trimming in volley ball yesterday afternoon while the older boys of the Jefferson school grounds defeated the west riders two out of three games.

HORSES ARRIVED ON SPECIAL TRAIN TODAY

Advance Guard for Next Week's Race Meet Reach City Today. On a special train, consisting of fifteen express cars, several strings of valuable race horses arrived in the city, all entries for the opening events of the Wisconsin Grand Circuit races at the Park Association tracks next Wednesday. These horses have been entered in the Redburg races which closed yesterday and are among the best in the middle-west. During the past week, dozens of fine blooded animals have arrived, which will race here during the three days and then go to the Western Circuit, the Eastern Circuit and some to the Grand Circuit. Already the track has taken on the appearance of the big race meet and by Tuesday every stall will be filled and there will be an excess stabled where they can be found accommodations. The advertising squad for the coming meet is reported that every bill board and barn is covered within a radius of hundreds of miles and that indications point to a large attendance.

MAY ASK FOR GRAND JURY TO MAKE INVESTIGATIONS OF THE RECENT ELECTION

REPORTED THAT ALLEGED EVIDENCE OF FRAUDULENT VOTING HAS BEEN DISCOVERED.

WORK ALREADY BEGUN

Probe is the Result of Rumors That Devious Methods Were Used in Recent Recall Election.

It was learned today that a careful investigation of the affidavits filed at the recent recall election, held July 22, and being made by prominent attorneys is contemplated owing to the fraudulent voting that has been alleged was committed, is discovered. Judge Grimm will be asked to call a special grand jury to make a most thorough probe into the matter. It is said that already several suspicious cases have been discovered of non-residents being sworn in as voters and that if a sufficient number of similar cases are discovered prompt action will be taken at once.

Result of Rumors.
It was stated this morning by one of the attorneys interested in the proposed investigation, that the present action is contemplated because the rumors that emanated immediately following the election that many who did not have the right to vote in the various wards, had been permitted to do so.

FAMILY REMAINS IN HOME WHILE MOVING

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bryant and Three Children Remain in Home While Moving to S. Third Street.

House moving has no terrors for Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bryant, who are moving their residence from 312 S. Second street to the corner of Ringold and South Third street. On Tuesday last they started to move their two-story, six-room house and since then their residence number has been changing every hour. When Mr. Bryant decided to move, his family also decided that they would not forsake their home and the family of five remained in the house while the contractors moved it from Wisconsin street to Court, then to Ransom street. They expect to be settled in their new location by the last of the week.

All the comforts of life are being enjoyed while enroute, although Mr. Bryant never knows where to come home during the dinner hour. Mrs. Bryant has a large number of plants out on the front porch where they continue to flourish, and the children do not seem to mind the house moving as they have a new playground every day.

WAR AGAINST WEEDS IS ON IN EARNEST

Weed Commissioners James Sennett and James W. McKewan Busy Seeing to Their Duties.

Janesville's weed crop is one of the biggest ever known and perniciously active in its growth, according to James Sennett and James W. McKewan, district street cleaners and also weed commissioners on the east and west sides of the river. They have been busy for several weeks past serving notice on delinquents and cutting weeds where the owners of the infected property neglected to heed their instructions. If after six days' notice the weeds on any premises are not cut the city does the work and charges the expense to the property to be entered on the tax rolls.

Burdock and yellow dock are the most common noxious weeds. There is little Russian thistle and no dachess of Canadian thistle are known to be in the city. The first ward of the city is not classified as a noxious weed in spite of considerable belief to the contrary. It is being grown under cultivation to a considerable extent for hay, pasture, and for selling. The average citizen promptly heeds the instructions of the weed commissioner and trouble is usually experienced with the same people year after year. Little trouble is had in preventing the growth of weeds in unimproved streets.

INSPECT BUILDINGS

LATE IN SEPTEMBER

Fire Chief H. C. Klein Will Not Be Able to Begin Work Until About That Time.

Inspections of buildings in compliance with the new state law will not be commenced by Fire Chief H. C. Klein until late in September, because of the press of work in his department. Another inspection will probably be made in September. The chief will do all this work in person. Under the new statute referred to each fire chief is made a deputy fire marshal and it is required that the chief or his assistants shall make four inspections a year in the business districts and two in the residence sections, and note all conditions of premises not in compliance with the law and notify the owner to remedy defects. Chief Klein will endeavor to secure a strict enforcement of the building code and give it a thorough trial, although much difficulty is thrown in the way of enforcing the laws by influential persons affected by them.

ASK FOR ELECTRIC LIGHT FRANCHISE AT PALMYRA

E. B. Heimstreet and Stanley B. Webster, former Janesville men, and Charles Kaker, have made application to the village board of Palmyra for a franchise to furnish electric lights for the village. If the franchise is granted, power for lighting the village will be furnished from the Palmyra Milling and Elevator Company plant. The application was read by the clerk on its introduction last Tuesday evening and action will be taken at the next board meeting.

to do so. He said: "It was so persistently reported that there was fraudulent voting at the recall election several of us decided that it would be best to make a thorough investigation and if anything suspicious was discovered to ask Judge Grimm to call a grand jury to make the probe most thorough. Thus far our work has been only preliminary but we have discovered several affidavits that were filed in swearing voters, that we are making a more thorough investigation of."

No Statement Made.
No statement was made whether sufficient grounds have been found for a grand jury investigation, but it was intimated that within the next few days the matter would be decided. It was also learned that the excessively large vote polled in one of the suspicious circumstances that lead to the present probe, owing to the fact that it is a fact that many former voters, men who have cast their ballots for years, did not so on the 22d owing to the fact they had not secured their second papers under the new federal citizenship law.

Would Prove Interesting.
Should a grand jury be called it would prove most interesting as one of the echoes of the bitterly fought contest. The testimony would be taken behind closed doors, the public excluded, only the witnesses permitted to be present and upon their testimony the indictments would be issued or refused and the cases taken up in the circuit court.

ACT ON PETITION AT NEXT MEETING

City Council Will Probably Pass Upon Demand for Additional Foot Bridge at That Time.

Action on the petition for two foot bridges across Rock river during the building of a permanent structure will probably be taken by the council at its meeting next Tuesday. The petition, to which sixty-four names were affixed, was submitted to the council at its adjourned meeting late yesterday afternoon, and investigation will be made by the council. The resignation of Harry Nowlan as member of the Fire and Police Commission was received and placed on file. Action on it was deferred. The Rockford & Interurban company petitioned for permission to erect a sign in front of its passenger station on South Main street. The closing of Jackson street from Union to Rock street was authorized.

Principal Lowth spent the day visiting classes in the summer session. While in Platteville he visited the plant of the Badger Stereoscopic company and examined lantern slides of various kinds with a view to use in the training school this fall.

OUT AGAIN—OFF AGAIN IN AGAIN—BEN DIXON

Out of jail off the wagon, in again is the beaten track that Ben Dixon has been following for some time. This morning it was "in again" for he pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication in the municipal court and was sentenced to fifteen days in the county jail in default of a fine of $10 and costs.

One other man accompanied him to Hotel Whipple, Frank Fitzpatrick, who pleaded guilty to a similar charge. He was a stranger to the court though claiming this city as his residence. Sheriff Whipple's greatest worry is that his hostelry is over-popular and there are too many who are ambitious to rank as star boarders.

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By
D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted.)

In this week's letter on life with the circus I certainly have a hard duty to perform. Some four months ago I wrote an article about an old friend that had passed away in Southwest Texas and all my information came from the New York papers, and it all came about in this way.

It was in the summer of eighteen and nineteen that my old friend C. A. Davis was fighting for his life with the much dreaded disease consumption and his physician advised him that there was but one chance for him and that was to hike for southwestern Texas and remain there on a ranch and keep out of doors day and night.

Charles Davis got all his earthly belongings together, took the advice of his physician and started for the Southwest. He located on a ranch some fifteen miles southwest of El Paso, Texas and there commenced his long fight against the dreaded disease.

Charles's friends heard from him occasionally for many years, but some two or three different eastern papers announced his death and a little later a Chicago paper spoke of him as the late C. A. Davis. Some four months ago I wrote up his career as newspaper writer and manager of more than one famous lecturer and also of different high class theatrical attractions.

In due course of time the article found its way to James Wilmarth, editor of the El Paso Herald, and it was not so long until Mr. Wilmarth turned to C. A. Davis on his Texas ranch the article on his life's work and the obituary.

One day last week I was more than surprised at receiving a letter from my old friend whom I supposed had died more than a year and a half ago and on opening the letter I certainly for a few seconds seemed to me that the Resurrection Day had come, but as he informed me in his letter he had never really been counted out.

The letter which I received from him and a card which announces him the president of the Rangers' 200-year club, and a recommendation from Robert C. Ingersoll, the noted lecturer accompanied the letter, all of which I will give you in full also his picture taken only two months ago and it certainly looks as though he was here to stay for many years to come and that this is true is the wish of scores of friends of Charles Davis.

El Paso, July 28, 1913.

My Dear Watt:

For three months I have been threatening to advise you of a little error that crept into your article in Janesville paper last winter which was shown me by our mutual friend, "Col." Wilmarth of the El Paso Herald.

Threatening to do things, however, is an old specialty of mine and my thirteen years' stay in the Southwest has amplified and perfected that old characteristic of mine in a superlative degree.

It is true that I have been fifty per cent dead at times and perhaps ought to have gone the full count—once hundred—but the fact remains that the census enumerators still insist on including me in the population of this particular planet. Life may not look as rosy as it once did to a man who has reached the half-century mark, but still a live man knows where he is at. There are some serious objections to being placed in the undertaker's hands. For one thing, a dead man has no postoffice address.

Aside from your desire to have me a resident of the grave-yard your article was all right. I ought to feel complimented on having such a good obituary written.

I have got a little used to the obituary act. Every now and then I see myself referred to in the eastern papers as the late C. A. Davis.

Now that I have become "restored" let me hear from you occasionally. There are three men on El Paso Herald—Wilmarth, William Laughlin and H. H. Fries—who know you well. Know you in Janesville. I have been in and out of El Paso for ten years and have heard Wilmarth and Laughlin speak of you during all that time. Always inended to write, but—there are other things to do besides letter writing.

One little issue I have had to meet has been the argument with the more or less genial tubercle bacilli. Am gradually wearing them out, but it has been an awful combat.

Regarding Mrs. Watt and the Stillsons, I remember. I did the best. Also remember his brother, but have forgotten his first name. The father Riley Stillson was a strong, clean-cut personality and I recall him vividly. Fred and my older brother Jim (who died in 1886) were big friends.

Came near forgetting to tell you that my brother Tom died two years ago. I have been in the Southwest continuously since the close of the Forepaugh-Sells season of 1893.

Have not been north since. New Orleans and Los Angeles are the only two big towns I have seen during that time.

Think the last time you and I met was in Chicago in the summer of 1898. I being there with the Forepaugh-Sells circus.

Is Charley Brooks still living?

Yours always,

HOPE TO HAVE FINE CREAMERY EXHIBITS

State Fair Officials Active in Representing Wisconsin as Leading Dairy State in Union.

Every official department of the state of Wisconsin is striving to the utmost to make the state fair to be held at Milwaukee September 8 to 12, a success beyond all past records. The dairy and food commission especially is active in behalf of the dairy display, urging all engaged in the dairy business to assist in making an exhibit worthy of Wisconsin as the leading dairy state.

H. C. Larson, second assistant dairy and food commissioner, has addressed the following letter to butter and cheesemakers:

Wisconsin being the leading dairy state in the union, I desire as superintendent of the dairy department in connection with the state fair which is to be held at Milwaukee September 8-12, 1913, to urge the creamery, cheese factory and dairy interests of the state to support the dairy department by making exhibits of butter, cheese, milk and cream so that the thousands of visitors at the state fair will be impressed with that fact. There is located on the state fair grounds the finest dairy building in the country where all the exhibits of butter, cheese milk and cream will be cared for and can be viewed by those attending the fair. There are over 1,000 creameries and nearly 2,000 cheese factories in the state, and if that many exhibits of butter and cheese could be made at the state fair, what an advertisement it would mean for Wisconsin butter and cheese.

The premium money offered for creamery butter is $350. In addition thereto the board of agriculture will add $5 for each additional exhibitor over 150 exhibiting creamery butter, the total amount for creamery butter being limited to $1,600 which amount will be pro rated on all butter scoring 90 and above.

The total premium money offered for cheese is $1,250, and classed as follows: Flats or Baby cheese, $500; Cheddar cheese, $300; Brick cheese, $325; Limburger cheese, $50; Swiss cheese, $200; Young America or Longhorn, $175.

One single cheese is required for an exhibit in the case of Cheddar, Flats or Baby cheese, Young America or Longhorn cheese. While only three cheeses are required for an exhibit in the case of Brick and Limburger cheese, it is earnestly requested that such cheese be exhibited in full commercial cases. Single cheese is required for an exhibit in the case of Swiss cheese and may be either of drum or block shape. The premium money offered in all classes will be pro rated on cheese scoring 90 and above.

In the certified milk and cream class, in the case of milk the first prize is $5; second, $3; and third, $1. In the case of cream the first prize is $8; second, $5; and third, $3. In the market milk and cream class in the case of milk the first prize is $8; second, $5; third, $3. In the case of cream the first prize is $5; second, $3; third, $1.

The Creamery Package Manufacturing Co., the A. H. Barber Creamery Supply Co., and the Wisconsin Dairy Supply Co., have each kindly agreed to furnish gratis to any buttermaker in the state who requests it a 20 pound ash tub for the purpose of exhibiting butter at the state fair.

The premium list and rules governing the exhibiting of butter, cheese milk and cream, together with entry blanks and shipping tags will be mailed to every creamery and cheese factory operator in the state.

Any one not receiving the same should apply to the superintendent, Mr. H. C. Larson, Madison. The exhibition space in the dairy building will be filled with exhibits of the latest and most modern creamery, cheese factory and dairy farm machinery which will afford the visitors at the fair who contemplate purchasing any such machinery or apparatus a grand opportunity to examine and have the same thoroughly explained by those in charge of the exhibits.

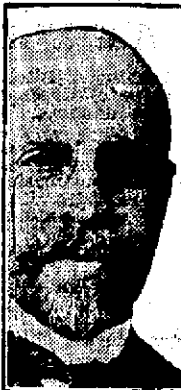

Very truly yours,
H. C. LARSEN,
Second assistant dairy and food commissioner.

The Company We Keep

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D.D.

Dean of Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly.—Psalm 1:1.

Who are the ungodly? There seems to be a distinction between them and open sinners, because the same verse says, "that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners." This distinction is not one that has any bearing on the day of judgment, for all men in the sight of God are divided into but two great classes, not the good and the bad, subjectively considered, "for there is none good, no, not one," but believers and unbelievers—the saved and the lost. Any other distinctions are only of a secondary kind and limited to the things of earth.

For example, when we speak of an adulterer or a drunkard, we associate with him the name of "sinner," but when we speak of an outwardly moral man who nevertheless acknowledges no allegiance to the God of the Bible, we think of him as "ungodly." The latter is unconcerned about his personal salvation. Living an honest life as the world goes, he believes he will fare well enough at the last. He would not deny the existence of God and a future life, but he has no particular or transforming ideas about either. He is uninfluenced by the encouragements and prohibitions, or the hopes and the fears set before him in the gospel. As the Bible says, God is not in all his thoughts.

The "ungodly" is a character with which most of us are more likely to come in close contact than the open sinner, and for that reason he is capable of more harm. We would not willingly associate with notorious transgressors, the libertine, the liar or the Sabbath breaker, but this other class of persons are not so well understood.

The Mark of the Ungodly.

The Psalmist names one distinguishing mark of the "ungodly" as his "counsel." In other words, he thinks, not wisely, or deep or well, but he thinks. He also criticizes, advises and recommends. His voice is heard in the popular magazine and work of fiction. He is your companion on a railway train, or in a hotel lobby. You meet him in your store or shop, and it will not be long before he exhibits his missionary zeal. "Look at me," he says, "and thousands like me, who reject all this nonsense about salvation are we fools?" "How can Christianity be the divine religion to the exclusion of every other, when its numbers are comparatively so small?" This is the way he justifies his arguments.

But what is meant by "walking in this counsel?" Are we to abandon society, retire from business, and put an end to converse with our fellow-men? Being in the midst of the "ungodly," how can we avoid walking with them? The answer is that we need not walk with them in the moral sense and of free choice. If we go among them in the path of duty we shall be upheld by divine grace, and if the demands of our vocation bring us there, the necessity of entering that society in distinction from selecting it, will put us on our guard and be an antidote to the infection. But we must not put ourselves willingly in their society. We must resist inducements to make one of them, and sacrifice worldly convenience, if need be, in order to honor God and maintain the purity and development of our souls.

Sin Progressive.

The verse from which our text is taken is a sentence in which the same thought is repeated more than once with a slight addition to it each time. That is, three characters are represented, each exceeding the other in wickedness—the "ungodly," the "sinner," the "scornful." The first walks, the second stands, the third sits down, completely gives up himself to opposition to God. The teaching is that sin is progressive, and as an old commentator says, "he who walks in the counsel of the ungodly will soon stand in the way of sinners, and he who stands in the way of sinners will ultimately sit down in the seat of the 'scornful.'" One blessing therefore, which accrues to him that "walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly" is that from which he is prevented. He is prevented from growing worse. But is a positive blessing also, for the man who walks not in the counsel of the ungodly is likely to walk in the counsel of God. "His delight will be in the law of God, and in his law will he meditate day and night." As a consequence there shall be seen in him growth and fruitfulness, "and he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

Helen Hollinsworth, daughter of a Methodist preacher, once prominent in Indiana, was recently taken by Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, into his home from the city jail. Debs publicly announced that he had opened his home to the girl and that she must be received by friends of his family as one of his children and issued what he called his challenge to the Christianity of Terre Haute.

DYED-IN-THE-WOOL FAN HIMSELF HE GOES DAILY TO THE GAME

The picture shows President Wilson and his party leaving in the White House automobile, the baseball park of the Washington American League club. This opportunity of seeing the new president is rapidly becoming a feature of baseball in Washington and the fans hurry out to the exit after the game, to catch a glimpse of him. He attends the game almost every day and is a dyed-in-the-wool fan. He is an enthusiastic rooter and gets almost as much attention as the games.

OVERHEATED MOTORS

METHOD BY WHICH TROUBLE MAY BE LOCATED.

President of Automobile Academy Says Many Things Would Put Machine Out of Commission.

"There are several reasons why automobile motors overheat," states William H. Stewart, Jr., president of an automobile academy. "It may be due to the circulating system being clogged somewhere, preventing the free circulation of the water. The obstruction might be in the radiator itself, in the water pump, or in the hose connections. It is not unusual for a piece of solder to clog the main water outlet at the base of the radiator."

"It is also possible that the propeller of the pump has become loosened on the shaft, and as a result does not throw the water." If the water hose connections have been out for some time it is more than likely that the inner walls have become softened and are swelling shut. The external surface of the hose will appear in good condition, while the inner walls have decayed and in swelling prevent the passage of the water.

"It is not difficult to locate the obstruction in the water lines. By removing the hose connection between the radiator and the top of the cylinder one can very well tell whether the pump is working or not. If the water is not forcibly thrown from the upper connection it is evident that the pump itself is not working or that there is an obstruction between the pump and the disconnected part. By disconnecting the part above the pump and leading to the cylinders one can very readily tell whether the trouble lies in the pump itself. Again the trouble may be traced back in the lower connection at the base of the radiator."

"If the automobile has been running for a considerable length of time it is also possible that the cylinders are carbonized to such an extent as to cause overheating. A thick coat of carbon in the cylinders will not only cause the motor to overheat, but also to knock, even though the spark is considerably retarded. A combination of a retarded spark and a slightly rich mixture will cause much trouble, irrespective of proper water circulation."

One of the biggest fights ever waged against Tammany Hall is now impending in New York city. Republicans, Progressives and the anti-Tammany wing of the Democratic party are solidly behind the candidacy of John Purroy Mitchell for mayor. Charles S. Whitman, whose brilliant record as district attorney made him a formidable candidate for the mayoralty, has been renominated for his present position. The ticket named with Mitchell also carries with it the renomination of McAneny as president of the borough of Manhattan and W. A. Prendergast as president of the board of aldermen. The Tammany candidate for the mayoralty in all likelihood will be William J. Gaynor, whose four-year term as a Tammany mayor will close this year.

Fear Trouble After Spilling Salt.

In many of the rural districts of Russia people when they spill salt not only toss a pinch over the left shoulder, but also crawl under the table and come out the other side, in order to avert ill-luck; while in New England, to break the evil spell of spilling salt, every particle is supposed to be collected and thrown on the stove to be consumed.

PLAN BIG FEATURES AT EVANSVILLE FAIR

WHOLE COUNTY WILL BE THOROUGHLY CANVASSED TO ADVERTISE BIG EXHIBIT.

NAME JANESVILLE DAY

Saturday, Aug. 23, Will Be Devoted Especially to Entertainment of Lower City Residents.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, Aug. 9.—Never has such an advertising campaign been put forth for the Rock county fair as this year, and present indications put all previous efforts into the background. Every rural route, every city and village in Rock county, besides numerous ones in adjacent counties have been thoroughly canvassed.

The complete program has not been announced as yet, but the free attractions will be numerous, a few being as follows:

The Kawano trio, a troupe of performing Janesville, will excel in all sorts of acrobatic stunts. There will be a troupe of plantation singers and "George and Georgia" will introduce trick house, revolving ladder and bounding hay rack stunts. There will also be Mlle. Ray's trick dogs and cats.

An innovation in the merry-go-round is the "jumping horse carry-all," the only up-to-date riding device in existence.

Babe LaPitte show, and Broncho John Wild West show will appear on the grounds.

Special Days.

Wednesday, Aug. 20, will be Children's day. Thursday, Aug. 21, is designated as Edgerton's day. Friday, Aug. 22, is Evansville day.

Saturday, Aug. 23 is Janesville day. On this day a special train will leave Janesville at 9:00 a. m. for Evansville and the fair. The Janesville band will be on hand to furnish music for the day.

Stoughton and Edgerton, between which there is great rivalry, will cross bats here Friday, the winners of this game playing Saturday, probably with the Janesville team.

Thursday, Evansville will play Van Colts of Beloit, who recently defeated them in a 2 to 1 score, the visitors scoring on errors.

Another feature is the babies' health contest, awards being made at 3:30 p. m. Friday.

The racing program will be one of the best in southern Wisconsin. The entries to early closing three-year-old trot and paces far exceeded the expectations of the superintendent of speed. Late closing entries close Saturday, Aug. 9th.

Machinery will be an especially strong feature. A most complete line of exhibits being assured, as will also be the case in the poultry department. Superintendents of nearly every department are clamoring for more space.

The general arrangement of grounds has been considerably changed, all live stock being moved to the west side of the grounds. Two new cattle barns and new horse barns have been erected. All buildings have been painted and white-washed and all old fences have been replaced by new ones. Next week Evansville citizens are planning a bee for painting at the grounds.

Lawn Fete Given.

An exceptionally fine program was given last evening at the lawn fete held on the grounds of the fair, and those having an opportunity of hearing Mrs. E. Stewart of Hudson, sing, were certainly privileged. Miss L. H. Ludington, a very proficient reader, gave several numbers, also. The lawn was beautifully lighted, light refreshments were served and a splendid program rendered. The proceeds will be used on the repair work of the Episcopal church.

A Canadian paying his first visit to London was asked what he thought of it. "Well," he replied, "it is astonishing the number of people who have got a shine on their boots in the morning." He then explained that over on the other side landladies never brush boots, with the result that people of both sexes get into a habit of patronizing "shoe shine parlors" when they want their boots cleaned.

POPE PIUS MAKES PLEA FOR INTERNATIONAL PEACE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Rome, Aug. 9.—The tenth anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius was especially celebrated in the Sixtine Chapel at the Vatican today, in the presence of the pontiff, the Sacred College, the papal court, patriarchs, archbishops, bishops, head of religious orders and representatives of the Italian aristocracy.

His Holiness signaled the anniversary of his succession to the throne of St. Peter by issuing a plea for international peace. The encyclical, which is regarded as one of the most important of his reign, contains an urgent plea summoning the Catholic church everywhere to a world-wide effort for permanent international peace.

With the exception of Justice Holmes, who is two years his senior, Justice McKenna is the oldest member of the supreme tribunal.

FAMILIES OF IPSWICH MILL STRIKERS, PUT OUT OF THEIR HOMES BECAUSE THEY WON'T RETURN TO WORK, LIVE IN THE OPEN, EATING AND SLEEPING IN THE STREETS.

Evicted Family of an Ipswich Striker.

Ninety-five more mill families at Ipswich have been evicted and an extra cordon of police had to be drafted to preserve order. The men who control the mills also own the tenements in which the strikers and their families dwell, and declare the strikers either must go to work or get out of the houses.

In order to take care of the evicted people, a plan is on foot to erect tents

in which the roofless families are to be sheltered.

At the present time they cook and eat their meals in the open and sleep in the open, some in their beds and others curled up in rugs or carpets or in chairs.

The strike began in May, when the men demanded a twenty per cent increase in their wages. There has been considerable violence, a woman being killed and eight men injured in one disturbance.

The strike was originally called by the Industrial Workers of the World.

At the present time they cook and eat their meals in the open and sleep in the open, some in their beds and others curled up in rugs or carpets or in chairs.

The strike began in May, when the men demanded a twenty per cent increase in their wages. There has been considerable violence, a woman being killed and eight men injured in one disturbance.

A little later an organizer came to town to take charge of the situation and 500 Italians and 100 Greeks again left the mills. The English speaking employees, numbering 50, remained at work at first, but subsequently many of them quit work.

After the fatal riot, Leaders Hermann and Pingree were arrested charged with inciting to riot. In his cell Pingree said that the disturbance was a frame-up by the police to justify the keeping of a large number of officers on hand. The mills have been under police guard.

The Salary You Command Depends Upon the Knowledge You Possess.

W. W. DALE
President Janesville and Beloit
Business Colleges.

No man or woman can start into business today and expect to succeed who is not trained in real business methods. If you look upon business as something mysterious, to be grasped one point at a time, through years of work and experience, you will fail. Employers will not teach you--will not give you time to learn. You MUST have a knowledge of business at the start.

Your training should be absolutely thorough. A slow stenographer, an error-making typist, an indifferent, slipshod bookkeeper is not tolerated one minute by the "live employer." There are ambitious, trained, "get there" men to take your place when you drop out. How can you compete with these unless you are trained—unless you can take hold of a job, grasp the details of the situation, turn out neat, accurate work and "stick?"

Janesville Business College Gives You the Right Preparation.

There is no limit to the success you may achieve as a Stenographer or Bookkeeper. Many stenographers are making from $5000.00 to $15000.00 a year. Bookkeepers and auditors receive equally big wages. Hugh Chalmers began with the National Cash Register Company as a stenographer and quit a $72000-a-year job with the same firm to go into business for himself. Big things you say—of course, but you can accomplish them if you have the determination. What you need is the RIGHT start.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

COURTESY, THE FLOWER OF LOVE.
THERE is a certain home, at which I love to dine, largely because I do so enjoy seeing the husband stand behind his wife's chair until she is seated at the table. Nor are these two a pair of newlyweds who will soon drop this gracious custom. They have been married many years and this is but one of the graceful little courtesies which they have observed all the days of their married life.

Many people have an idea that home is pre-eminently a place where we should thoroughly relax in manners, in clothes and in temper, and be as unmannerly, as slovenly and as disagreeable as we please. "What's the use of having a family," queries someone, "unless you can be disagreeable to them when you feel like it?" And in a newspaper contest for the best definition of the word "home," one man wrote "Home is the place where you may eat with your knife if you want to and put your feet on the mantelpiece." His definition was but one of many which expressed similar pleasing notions of home.

Now if good form were only an artificial code of laws with no foundation but the whims of society, we might have reason to slough off our "company manner" in the home as if it were an uncomfortable garment or a tight shoe. But good manners are much more than that. The accepted ways of eating, the polite manner of addressing people, in short almost all the proprieties and courtesies are crystallizations of the ideas of many generations as to the most suitable and kindest way to do things.

With the majority of us, home is the gathering place of all those whom we love best in the world. Surely then we cannot want to be less kind to them than to those who are comparatively indifferent to us! True courtesy is the flower of the plant love. A plant may exist without flowering, to be sure, and have very firm, deep roots and a fine foliage, but it is not much more lovely when it flowers. Even so the love which has not only firmly established roots and a sturdy growth, but also the fair flowers of kind acts, loving words, and graceful courtesies, is much more beautiful and more to be desired.

How about the love plant which grows in your heart? Is it the species that flowers or not?

DIET FOR THE AGED.

To live long and to remain well and active is the object of every normal man or woman. As old age comes on, nature loses the inclination for exercise, but unfortunately she does not deprive us of the desire to eat. Our eating should adapt itself to our activities, and thus by abstemious living we could do away with many of the diseases subject to old age. From twenty to forty the vital organs are young and respond to demands without apparent difficulty, but at sixty the stomach and liver are beginning to resent over work, the exercise, life in the open air and work of earlier years are missed and the body feels the strain.

The result of over-eating develops fat and superfluous material, which clogs the system and chokes the vital organs, and we find ourselves with rheumatism, gout, indigestion, hardening of the arteries and various other serious troubles. Tissue building foods should be partaken of sparingly, as their need is past, though for variety it is well to keep them in the diet. Meat should be eaten but once a day.

The aged who are troubled with too much avoirdupois should cut out fats largely, not eating many root vegetables and scarcely any sweets.

A good diet for seventy or seventy-five should be made up of vegetables, fruit, some fish, eggs, a little meat and simple cereals. Two quarts of water or more should be taken each day between meals. The water is needed to flush the system and avoid friction, besides that which is needed in the tissues and blood.

Stimulants, such as tea and coffee, should not be strong. For the aged, it is better to eat often and lightly. Exercise in the open air is as necessary at seventy as it is at seven.

Those who exercise a great deal can eat and assimilate more food than the less active. If one has reached the age of sixty with no disease shadowing him, he should by right living show his gratitude and not become indolent and invite disaster.

Nellie Maxwell.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Things Worth Knowing.
Rub ink stains on linen with a ripe tomato and cut in half, and the stains will disappear when the article is washed.

Select large prunes, soak them over night, and then remove the pits carefully; stuff each prune with nut meat, roll in sugar, and serve as one would stuffed dates.

After boiling salt beef leave two or three carrots in the liquor until cold. The carrots will absorb the salt so that the liquor can be used for soup.

If you are mixing a cake with a spoon use the back of it in beating and the batter will more quickly become light. A wooden spoon is best.

THE TABLE.

Quaker Tea Cakes.—Two cupfuls of rolled oats, one cupful of sugar, two eggs, beaten slightly, one-fourth cupful of butter, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, half a teaspoonful of baking soda, and one heaping tablespoonful of sugar. Beat up two eggs well, add one cupful of milk or cream, then pour them among the flour, mix well. Drop in spoonfuls on a hot greased griddle, turning them when brown on the under side.

Blackberry Shortcake.—Two boxes of blackberries, two heaping cupfuls of flour, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, three heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, three tablespoonfuls of lard, one cupful of milk, sugar to taste, and whipped and sweetened cream. Mix and sift the flour, salt and baking powder, and the butter and the lard and chop until thoroughly blended, then add the milk. When well mixed, divide in halves, put each half into a round, buttered and floured cake tin. Flour the hand and pat to fit the tin. Bake from twelve to fifteen minutes in hot oven. Separate the upper portions from the lower portions of each cake with a fork—never with a knife—spread with butter. Fill well with blackberries, sweetened to taste, and arrange in layers. Garnish the top with whole blackberries and the whipped and sweetened cream.

Honolulu Lady Cake.—One-half cupful of milk, three-fourths cupful brown sugar, one egg yolk, one small cupful of grated chocolate, one teaspoonful of vanilla. Put this in a double boiler and heat to boiling point; then let cool. Cake part—One-half cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of soda sifted with flour. Stir in first part and bake in three layers. Put together with a boiled icing with chopped walnuts.

Mixed Marmalade.—Three pounds of pears, three pounds of plums,

SOCIETY GIRLS WHO RAN AWAY WITH DIGGS AND CAMINETTI TESTIFY IN SLAVE CASES; IF GUILTY MEN MAY GET FIVE YEARS

Among the first witnesses to testify in the white slave cases against Drew Caminetti and Maury L. Diggs in California will be Lola Norris and Marsha Warrington. The Warrington girl, with whom Diggs fled, and Miss Norris, with whom Caminetti ran away, were formerly among the most prominent society girls in Sacramento. They are now social outcasts. They will tell the jury how they went to Reno, Nev., with Diggs and Caminetti last February.

The defendants will attempt to prove that the girls were of bad character before the escapade. Proving this, however, will not insure their freedom. If found guilty, they may be sentenced to terms of not more than five years in the penitentiary.

Such a thing is tragically, yet radically wrong. It is a spoke in the wheel of progress. It never pays to have cruelly long memories. A "good forgettery" as one little chap quaintly puts it is really a nice thing to acquire. Divisions weaken and impoverish. We all have seen the truth amount of the prejudices that are apt to exist among them. I do not credit of this demonstrated. In union there

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

By FRANCIS JOYCE KENNEDY

May I say a few words regarding our Civic Club.

Anyone interested in good works knows the persons who attend meetings called in furtherance of some good cause and then go away without doing anything. It isn't that these meeting-goers are not in favor of the cause. They approve of all the speeches, they applaud vigorously. The next time there is a meeting called they eagerly attend and again listen attentively and approvingly. But farther than that they do not go. They heartily approve of the other doing, they themselves give time, service or money to the organization. Still they wonder when a club fails to expand and accomplish good deeds. They have the "meeting" habit. In a way such a person is a hindrance to a good cause, they occupy space that might be occupied by people more sincere and willing to help. They also bring on themselves a sort of moral degeneration for it is a serious matter to be always willing to give sympathy, and sympathy alone. "Show forth by your words, and your actions just where you stand."

Joint action for and by us all, is what is needed now. Let us have it! A woman alone can do something—not overly much. Same may be truthfully said of the women of any one block or ward. The women of our entire community must band together must make a collective defense. Then, and not till then will our club flourish and produce results.

It has been said that there is always a serious hindrance to collective action where women are concerned on is strength. Unity and loyalty is what our new club is in need of, and should have. Religion of the kind that bars one and accepts another should not be even mentioned in the club. That is one cause of our not being able to go forward, we are all apt to be against a member of another church having any say.

Now I realize that it is a wise person that refuses to talk on religion or politics. But if we would all just remember that we are not put here to show our neighbor how to live when he is making a success of the game in his own way) how much smoother the most affairs of this nature would be carried through. How much more successfully too. Let us try to keep in mind that we are all striving for an immortal prize, and that the Master paid the laborer that arrived at the last hour as well as the others. Petty differences are not tolerated where big issues are worked for. All together then let us move forward for our city's good.

Many Write of Joan.

Eighteen years ago a catalogue of works then existing was published under the title of "Bibliography of Works Relating to Joan of Arc." It contained 667 works of general biography, 849 that dealt with particular portions of the maid's life, 160 dramas and twenty-one operas, and the compiler stated that he could have included another 1,000 volumes.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

Economy in the Kitchen.
We are slowly learning that the French and Italian soup as used by people of moderate means is a meal in itself. Our people of the same income think of soup as a mixture of bones or cheap cuts of meat, plenty of water and a little salt, boiled quickly on a hot fire, strained and served. No wonder that many people call it dishwater and refuse to eat it.

The soup of France and Italy is made with very little meat, very slow cooking and a large number of other ingredients used with that kind of intelligence that might be termed a "loving" interest. When we season a soup, we are apt to think that if one bay leaf is good, two will be better; if one carrot is desirable, two will be more so. We have yet to realize that serious thought should be given to the ingredients so that no one flavor will be especially prominent and so that the combination will give the largest amount of nourishment in proportion to the expense.

Some sort of meat is essential unless we use rice, barley or tapioca; also a variety of herbs in very small quantities and a variety of vegetables cut fine. These are the essential characteristics of the soup, varying with every day according to what the market affords and what the pantry provides for leftovers.

In wealthy families where an abundant meal is served in addition to the soup, the cereal and vegetables are strained out; in more modest families they are left in for the

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-six years of age and was in love with a girl of twenty-two years. After the two years of waiting and courting her we were engaged but after giving her a diamond ring and a locket of extra good quality, after I returned home, she returned to me the ring. I was to know me and I believe she loves me and I believe I love her. What should she do if she still loves me?

Do you think it best to make up or stay separated? Some thought we were married. Do you think that would cause her to break the engagement?

DOUBTFUL'S MATE.
There is undoubtedly some misunderstanding on her part. Better go to see her and talk the matter over with her. If she loves you she will be glad to do that. Take the ring back with you and ask her again to accept it and wear it to please you. If you are engaged.

Why not ask her to marry you right away? That would stop the tongues wagging.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen and motherless. There's a boy of nineteen who has kept my company for over a year, but we had a quarrel and the fault was mine. Should I speak first?

What would you think of a fellow who I know cares for me a whole lot but never asked me to be his girl, although I know he throws down other girls just for me, and asked me to not go out with fellows?

I wish you could get rain spots out of an Alice blue messaline skirt?

UNGUINED HEART.
(1)—Tell him you are sorry you were hasty, and then treat him according to the way he receives your apology.

(2)—He probably likes you pretty well, but isn't ready to settle down with one girl yet. Don't take him too seriously.

(3)—You must be very fond of him.

I think.

(4)—Try a little chloroform for the rain spots.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—Please give me a list of dieting so I can get thin in the hot weather.

(2)—Do olives make one fat?

(3)—How can I get rid of black heads on my face? BLUE INK.

Put plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables and no candies or pastries or rich gravies. Do not eat potatoes or any starching foods. Eat only lean meats. Always eat a little less than you think you want. Exercise and perspire freely if you want to get thin. The juice of half a lemon in half a glass of hot water before breakfast will help also.

One ordinarily cannot get enough olives to make any difference in one's weight.

(3)—Bath with warm water and soap every day. Drink freely of pure water. Massage the face with a good cleansing cold cream every night and wipe it off well. When the blackheads are softened enough, press them out gently and anoint the place with a little peroxide.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What are the rules for stamp filtration? I receive letters with crooked stamps and wish very much to know whether it is just carelessness.

DOROTHY.

It is probably carelessness. The stamp filtration is so silly that I refuse to encourage it by giving the rules. A boy or girl often reads a meaning in a crooked stamp that is never meant by the sender of the letter.

WATERWORKS OF FOND DU LAC ARE PAYING PROPOSITION

(Fond du Lac Reporter.)

According to the annual report of the water department submitted to the common council at its meeting on Tuesday evening, the department experienced a net gain of $25,590.77 during the fiscal year ending July 31. The gross income of the department was $38,147.5, but deductions for interest debts and mortgages reduce this amount to $25,590.77.

The total operating revenues of the department amounted to $57,790.71. This amount represented collections for water service, various public and private uses. The total cost of the operating expenses of the department was $17,643.6. The difference allowed a gross earning of $38,147.5, from which the deductions for interest were made, giving the net gain for the year.

The greatest earnings of the department were from commercial sales, $22,005.73, being realized from this source; $2,139 was realized from industrial sales and from municipal hydrant rental, $13,688 was collected. The other revenues were from miscellaneous sources.

The cost of steam power operation at the plant for the year was $8,317, according to the report; electric power pumping was $6,049. The balance of the expenditures was for miscellaneous items.

The total assets of the department according to the trial balance given in the report, are $402,956.68. The total liabilities are $377,374.91. The net gain is the difference.

GREEN BAY FINDS ASPHALT VERY SATISFACTORY PAVING

(Green Bay Gazette.)

The first asphalt paving was laid in Green Bay some years ago and during the period since that time there has been a practical increase in the use of asphalt tar macadam, concrete and macadam as paving materials. There is no question but that the asphalt streets are the best both for use and appearance. The only argument that can even be attempted for the other varieties named is that of comparative cost.

Asphalt, it is true, is the most expensive in the beginning, but when durability is considered it is entirely likely that it may also be found the cheapest. Thus far it is outwearing the other varieties and there is every reason for believing that by the time the city's first asphalt paving is worn out it will have demonstrated that it is not only the best but also the cheapest street covering that can be put down.

The ten or eleven miles of sheet asphalt in the city laid with the Trinidad or Bermudez like asphalt are all in first class condition, some of it having been in use on the streets bearing the heaviest traffic in the city for about seven years.

ORNAMENTAL POSTS TO AID ENFORCE TRAFFIC ORDINANCE

(Sterling Gazette.)

As an aid to automobilists in observing the traffic ordinances, it has been decided by the streets and alleys committee to erect ornamental posts at the street intersections in the downtown districts. This move has been concurred in by the members of the council and on Monday evening the streets and alleys committee was instructed to investigate the matter.

with power to act. According to present plans the posts will be set at the intersections, two to an avenue one on either side of the street and, exactly in the center of the avenues. They will be set in a concrete base and will be either of ornamental iron or concrete design. One globe or a cluster of globes, boulevard style, will be used to light the tops of the poles at night. The committee called Chief of Police John Cushman into conference Monday evening, the chief assuring the members that such poles would assist in regulating traffic greatly and would with the white spots be a help to the automobile drivers, rendering them less likely to violate the ordinances by keeping the traffic divided right and left.

MINERAL POINT CITY HALL TO COST FIFTY THOUSAND

The contract for the erection of the new city hall in Mineral Point has been let for $43,000 to Edward Donegan who has the contract for the building of the new St. Joseph's hospital in this city. When completed the new building will cost $51,000. The contractor agrees to have the structure ready for occupancy by August 1st, 1914.

The building will be of brick and Bedford stone and when completed will be one of the finest buildings in southwestern Wisconsin. The structure will be two stories and a basement with a theatre addition 500 feet and ranges in height from 45 to 80 feet.

The entire first floor will be used for the city library and the second floor will be occupied by office rooms, committee rooms, council chamber and rest room.—Dodgeville Chronicle.

MAKE A SUCCESSFUL TRIAL OF WEED KILLER ON STREET

(Sterling Gazette.)

After a trial of several weeks of a weed killer, Superintendent of Streets Mat Potts declares that the weed killer is capable of doing all that is claimed for it and will recommend the purchase of a quantity large enough to cover all of the weedy spots of the city.

The weed killer was tried out in pavement, where weeds and grass were growing up through the tiles, on Macadam and on dirt roads. In every instance, the single application did the work, thereby saving the city the expense of grubbing up the weeds. In addition to this fact, the killer is guaranteed to kill weeds for several years to come, making the saving to the city tremendous.

The purchase of the trial can of the weed killer by the Streets and Alleys committee was made at the instigation of the Public Improvements committee of the Commercial club after an investigation extending over several weeks. Prior to this, Roadmaster Leo Ryan of the North Western lumbering company, a thorough trial and found it to work in a most satisfactory manner. The committee will in his recommendation that enough be purchased to cover all of the gutters and weedy spots throughout the city.

WILL PAY FOR GASOLINE FOR ENGINEER'S AUTOMOBILE

The city of Racine will pay $25 per month, from June 1 to Dec. 1, for the use of the automobile owned by City Engineer Connolly. This was agreed upon at a meeting of the common council as a committee of the whole. The aldermen believing that an automobile was needed by the city engineer's department more than any other department of the city. Should a tire blow out while the automobile is being used by the city, Mr. Connolly will have to replace it at his own expense. Mr. Connolly informed the aldermen that the department would have to have another horse and buggy or an automobile, because of the great distance to be covered in the sewer survey work.

SUCCESSFUL FLY TRAP USED AT ROCK FALLS

A number of residents of the city have been much impressed with the use of a trap which is in front of the Washburne store for the past few days. It is a home made concern. It is a roll of wire screen made into a ten inch cylinder with an inverted cone with a hole in the bottom. Any one can make one. It is catching thousands of flies every day. The scheme is being tried out by some of the residents at their homes placing the traps on their porches, and it is working first rate.—Sterling, (Ill.) Gazette.

SIOUX CITY WILL LOSE WOMEN ON POLICE FORCE

Sioux City, Iowa.—The break in the harmony of the city council which followed the recent turning of Councilman G. B. Healy against his colleague was widened when the councilmen on Saturday voted down a resolution of Commissioner Charles O'Shannessy of the safety department to provide an appropriation for the continuing of the work of the two police women on the force. Mayor Smith and Councilman Beckett, in the absence of Councilman Healy, were able to block the appropriation and O'Shannessy will be obliged to drop the women from the payroll. They have been investigating vice conditions. O'Shannessy openly admitted that he appointed them in order to call off a newspaper crusade.

WILL ELIMINATE VESTIBULE ON ROCKFORD STREET CARS

Rockford, Ill.—Elimination of vestibules seen in the new cars which the Rockford city council is now putting into service. Three cars have been provided without vestibules and seven more will be similarly constructed. The absence of vestibules is to provide room for passengers. It is said to mean that smoking will no longer be a pastime of male patrons who indulge in the weed as they will have no place in which to woo Lady Nicotine. Fares will be rung up by means of foot pressure and signals will be given in the same manner.

ALLIANCE WILL MOTORIZE ITS ENTIRE DEPARTMENT

Alliance, Ohio will motorize its entire fire department. The remaining two fire engines and horse drawn equipment will be replaced by a trip combination motor-driven fire engine at cost $5,500. When this is done Alliance will have three stations entirely equipped with motor apparatus.

Fond du Lac has received bids from five different fire apparatus companies for furnishing a combined chemical, hose truck and motor pump, or a combined chemical and hose truck. The bids ranged from $3,800 to $9,000.

WAUKESHA CITIZENS OBJECT TO A MUNICIPAL HOSPITAL

Waukesha, Wis.—A movement is on foot to local business men to oppose the action ordering municipal hospital to cost $15,000. The building was ordered by a popular vote. Many feel that taxes are too high to maintain such an institution and there is objection to locating it in Cedar park.

Waterworks Broke Down.

Waukesha, Wis.—This city was left in a precarious condition Friday morning when at 9 o'clock the water works pressing machine of the water works gave way, leaving the spring city without a drop of water in its pipes. An electric fire bell was restored to by afternoon, but over half of the city was without water.

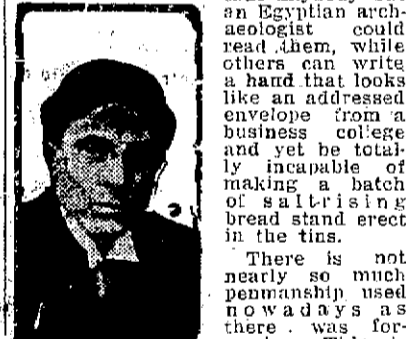

Women Vote For Trucks.

Champaign, Ill.—Champaign women at their first municipal election voted almost unanimously to bond the city for $17,000 for the purchase of two automobile fire trucks and modern fire fighting appliances. One hundred and twenty women exercised their franchise.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

By Howard L. Ramo

Penmanship is one of the three lost arts. The other two are spelling and home-made bread. Though few people can spell long sentences, words with their eyes shut, but couldn't write them down so that anybody but an Egyptian archæologist could read them, while others can write a hand that looks like an addressed envelope from a business man, and yet be totally incapable of making a batch of salt rising bread in the tins.

There is not nearly so much penmanship used now a days as there was formerly. This is due to the invention of the shir-waisted stenographer, who makes it unnecessary for a man to do anything but collect his thoughts and distribute them about the room without any regard for spelling, punctuation or grammatical construction. If a business man can sign his own name so that it can be given the footprint of a dog and a gleam, he doesn't need any other equipment except a second-hand typewriter and a vivacious intelligence in also puffs and piano-finishes his work. Some of the cleverest men allow the stenographer to sign their names to everything but ardent replies to scented billetdoux on pink note paper.

The most common use made of penmanship at this time is inditing the bi-weekly love letter. Very few people of refined taste use the typewriter to make love with, as it lacks the intimate, personal touch imparted by nine pages of stuttering long hand. There is something cold and repellent about a typewritten love letter, but it is perfectly safe so long as three carbon copies are retained. Nobody who writes endearing passages on a typewriter will ever be sued for breach of promise unless he draws a few turtle doves at the bottom of the page.

Penmanship is taught in the primary grades to children who are also taught how to twist their mouths into the precise shape of the alphabet. The highest branch of penmanship consists in hitting a single check in a whisper and then committing mayhem on a set of double-entry books.

Puritans Fond of Lace.

In Puritan times, though the hobbits were carved with texts warning the workers against the pomps and errors of this wicked world, lace was still worn to a great extent, the family of Oliver Cromwell in particular having a decided penchant for the more costly varieties, and after his death his body was clothed in a garment more richly trimmed with lace and ermine than that of any king before him.

JUDGE KAREL FINDS DWIGHT TO BE SANE

Brother of a Former Janesville Man, Found Unbalanced by Judge Owen is Given Freedom.

Janesville residents who were acquainted with Dr. C. G. Dwight, for several years a practicing specialist in this city, now living at Madison, will be interested in the case of his brother, Harvey A. Dwight, of Milwaukee, who was declared to be sane by Judge Karel yesterday, reversing the decision of Judge Owen who found him unbalanced. Dwight's wife is implicated in the case. Dwight has been paroled to the custody of his brother, Dr. Dwight. At the hearing Friday Oliver P. Dwight testified that his brother Harvey, suffered a severe nervous breakdown in August, 1912, owing to overwork. The following December, the witness said, his brother went to Alabama, where he stayed until March of this year.

Dwight's wife refused to accompany her husband to Alabama, the witness declared, and upon his return, in the latter part of March, as the train pulled into Chicago, Dwight expected his wife to meet him, the witness said, with every mark and sign of affection. Instead, the witness said, Dwight was met at 2 o'clock in the morning by his wife, a detective and a deputy sheriff and was put under arrest and taken to a hotel.

On the following morning, his testimony further alleged, Dwight was taken before Judge Owens and adjudged insane.

The witness testified that Mrs. Dwight took possession of all her husband's money, about $1,700.

"She came to Milwaukee but once," said the witness, "on May 24, accompanied by her attorney, she demanded the return of her husband's money. When this was refused she made application to the circuit court of Milwaukee for the possession of these certificates; and the case is now pending."

(By Walt Mason.)

The hot winds shimmered from the South and made the people cuss; no hotter blasts are left the mouth of old Father Time to kiss and sign in its staid, the grass was shriveled sore, and in the pasture and the HOT WINDS swore, I saw a sad-eyed farmer stand and view his ruined field, he held in his hand, the which he did not yield; he merely stood and looked around, as one who's stunned and sick, as you might look, if some one found your midriff with a buck, I centered blithely upon him a sportive dance of cheer. "Don't lettyditt eyes with tears be dim—the luck will change next year. The brave man's garments are not torn, nor does he tear his hair, because he sees his fields of corn burned up beyond despair. Next year the winds will cooler be the rains will come in time; so dance and sing and whoop with glee—despondency's a crime. That's why I'm sitting up in bed, too sore to swat the flies, I flapped out on a bedstead on my eyes. Yes, when I'm on my feet again I'll spring my helpful spells, and urge the gloomy sons of men to dance on jovial heels, I still shall have a merry note, but I will always be more cautious when I choose the goat to hear my ecstasy.

Dinner Stories

The favorite game of the southern negro is "shooting crabs." A negro will "shoot" away anything from the clothes on his back to the meal on his table, but "shooting" for prospects is a new phase.

A capitalist was the guest of a southern hotel, and the first night he gave his waiter a 50-cent tip. At breakfast the waiter could not do enough for him, and he tipped him another 50 cents. At lunch he had a new waiter. The capitalist said nothing.

ing, but when the same new waiter served him at dinner that evening he asked:

"Sam, where's the boy I had yesterday?"

Sam hung his head. "He ain't at dis table no mo', boss."

"I know, but why was he moved?" I asked him.

Sam looked frightened, but he stood his ground. "It was like dis, boss. After breakfast dis mornin' we shot crabs for dat fast 50 cents you shot him, and I shot him, and I shot for dat second 50 cents you give him, and I won dat; den when his money was all gone, we shot for to wait on you, and I won."

"Murriel" said the old gentleman, sharply, "that young man you had in the parlor last night is dull of comprehension. All I had to do was to cough when the other chaps would maintain too late, and they would take the hint and depart. Did this one say anything when I coughed last night?"

"Yes," replied the beautiful daughter. "He said the next time he coughed he was going to bring you some cough drops."

TODAY ONLY! IN ONE REEL—THE THRILLING LOVE-TALE OF GLADYS DE SMARTY AND RUTHERFORD ON THE BEACHES

(Moving picture rights reserved.) Society made the match. They were inseparable and continually together. True, the "affairs of amour" of a watering place are never very seriously regarded; the trysts that are pledged on the sands by the sea seldom live through the summer season. But here it was different. Society demanded that Gladys Van Gwynne de Smarty become the bride of Rutherford Wadda-Box.

Rutherford Wadda-Box sat alone in his suite; he was not with Gladys today. Nervously he flicked the ash from his cigarette into the handsome gold tray at his well-groomed elbow. Clearly he was troubled, distraught. "It is true," he mused, "that the name Rutherford Wadda-Box appears in fashionable scrawl upon the register of this hotel. It is true that I am of handsome and modest bearing and that society would have me make Gladys Van Gwynne de Smarty my wife. But I am not what I seem. Though I love that little girl I am not worth so much as a part of her smallest finger.

This thing has gone too far. She is wealthy; I am a penniless beggar. I am a cad. In fact, I'm a dirty crook. I must see her and tell her all." In the handsomely appointed boudoir of an elegant suite Gladys Van Gwynne de Smarty sat weeping bitterly. She, too, was clearly troubled. "Had I but known it would have come to this! I thought to find a harmless flirtation, but now I find I have lost my heart to him. What folly for one such as I to aspire to the hand of the scion of one of America's wealthiest houses. How little does he know that I am not what I seem. I am not even a chorus girl. I must see him and tell him all." And a fresh outburst of tears shook her supple, slit-skirted form.

A maid entered with a card. "Rutherford!" she breathed. "I will see him, Jane."

The portieres parted and Rutherford Wadda-Box stepped into the room. At the sight of his handsome figure she burst forth into tears anew. Tenderly he placed his hand upon her extremely fashionable coiffure and hid his slack-jawed sob.

"Miss de Smarty—Gladys, I have come to say good-bye. I have deceived you. My name is not Rutherford Wadda-Box."

"You—!" The tears abated. She looked up aghast, startled, considerably perplexed. Anyone could see she was fussed. "Your name is not Rutherford Wadda-Box."

"Far from same. My real handle is Chester Perkins. You made such a splash with me at the start that I had to keep up the stall. Kid, I certainly fell for you right. But I must blow."

"Chester!" He turned at the words to see two arms hold out appealingly. With one step he reached her side and drew her into his embrace. Lips met. They clinched. "Chester, you didn't have a thing on me. I was stalling too. My real name's Mabel Jones."

BLUE SLIPS!

BY WALTER GREGORY.

"AY, can you cook a beefsteak well?" The girl, who was sweeping off the porch of the bungalow, faced round suddenly. The sunlight brought out gleams of gold in her brown hair, and there was the same burnished glint in her brown eyes.

"Why, I—!" and she stopped short, staring down at the tall young man who stood at the foot of the steps.

"Perhaps you are not the cook," he suggested. "It was that sign that gave me sudden hope. You see the cooking at the hotel is abominable."

Again that curious gleam came into the girl's eyes as she looked in the direction in which he pointed, and saw the sign. "Short-order cooking a specialty," lifted across the walk.

"No, I am not the cook," the girl said slowly; "but I can cook a beefsteak well. I think cooking is my sole accomplishment."

Gerald Gray ascended the steps. "I'm mighty glad I found you. Now I'm in a bit of a hurry—"

"Estelle," she volunteered as he hesitated. "I'll step lively. Just be seated on the veranda. There are the morning papers, and I'll call you in a short time."

The man's eyes followed her as she tripped away. Why was she so different from the usual maid? Instead of reading the papers he sat gazing over the ocean, which was still foamed and cresting and turbulent after the storm, until Estelle's musical voice called him.

The hall led to a charming dining-room. It was gloriously unlike the usual one of the boarding house being resplendent in weathered oak and old blue draperies. In the center of the fantastically laid table stood a vase of golden California poppies.

The feet grapefruit was just to Gerald's liking. When he had finished it Estelle brought a juicy steak, done to a turn, and crisp buttered toast. The coffee was irreproachable. "This is fine! The best breakfast I ever ate!" Gerald cried, looking at the girl. "I say, don't you have lots of custom?"

"Plenty of it," was her smiling response. "This is a beautiful spot," Gerald went on, conscious only of a desire to delay the girl's going. "The sea—I am sure one would never tire of it. Van Dyke says it is too big for loving and too uncertain, but—"

"O, he did not know," Estelle cried quickly. "Even Van Dyke makes mistakes. He says—" then she stopped very suddenly and hastily began to gather up the dishes. Gerald rose and awkwardly put his hand into his pocket.

"TELL ME ABOUT IT QUICKLY, ESTELLE."

"The breakfast was fine. How much—What—" "Just the usual charge. Thank you," and her hand closed over the silver dollar that he extended.

The street he paused to look back. His persistence was rewarded by the flutter of Estelle's lilac gown and white apron.

"By George," said Gerald. "I've simply got to see that girl again. Think of her, quelling Van Dyke! I'll go back there to dinner tonight."

The plan was overthrown by a chance meeting with Harry Thornton whom he had known at college. Gerald had been, in a way, fond of Thornton, but he regretted having gone down on the wharf at that particular time, for Harry said:

"Now, you must come up to our house for dinner. My sister, Caro, has a little party this evening, and she—What's that? Intrude? Well, I reckon you don't know how scarce men are here. Caro will look upon you as a special dispensation of Providence."

The Thorntons welcomed Gerald warmly. They were just such easy-going, light-hearted people as Harry's relatives would naturally be. Caro was a pretty brunette, and she began at once to make plans for a week's festivities and include Gerald in her plans.

Dinner over, Harry carried his friend up to his own room, where they spent an hour, smoking and talking over old times. It was not until it was time for the guests to arrive that the two young men went downstairs.

Just as they were about to enter the parlor, a girl emerged from that room, carrying a large crystal bowl that was filled with long-stemmed crimson roses. It was Estelle.

Gerald stopped short. How came she there? It must be in her capacity of maid. Even as he answered that question to himself Gerald bowed low before the girl, giving her the same courteous recognition that he would have given Caro Thornton.

"Eh!" Harry cried. "Gerald, I didn't know that you were acquainted with Miss Brady. How does it come, Estelle, that I've never heard you mention Gerald Gray?"

By that time Estelle had deposited her bowl of roses on a pedestal in the hall. As she turned about Gerald saw that she wore a dainty white evening dress and that a string of rare old cameos encircled her neck.

"Really, Harry, I do not imagine that you have heard me mention the names of all the people whom I know," she said lightly. "Mr. Gray and I have discussed the sea and Van Dyke, and—well, I am not sure but I boasted to him of my sole accomplishment."

It was not until the evening was nearly over that Gerald found an opportunity to speak with Estelle alone.

At the end of a delightful waltz with her, the young man, without asking her permission, led the girl out on the veranda. Before them the ocean stretched, a glittering silver expanse undulating in the moonlight.

"It is too cool to keep out here long," he said, and in his voice there was a note of care that was a caress. "Tell me all about it quickly, Estelle. Nay, you bade me call you that. How did I come to make such a fool of myself?"

"I think it was the fault of the wind. You see the sign from a hotel had blown over on our lawn. The cottage is our home for the summer. It was so funny, so very funny that you came in that I could not refuse to play the part you had assigned me."

"I am glad you did not refuse. Forgive my stupidity, pray do," he pleaded. "I am glad I learned about the accomplishment; it argues well for our future happiness. Yes, I will take you in now, but I am coming to the cottage in the morning."

WOMAN SICK FOURTEEN YEARS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

SO DECEPTIVE

Many Janesville People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

Backache is so deceptive. It comes and goes—keeps you guessing.

Learn the cause—then cure it. Possibly it's weak kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills are so effective.

They're especially for weak or disordered kidneys.

Here's a Janesville case.

Lewis Gower, decorator, 1214 Mineral Point Ave., Janesville, Wis. says: "Having pains and turpentine probably started my kidney trouble, and I had severe attacks of pain through my loins. When I bent over I had trouble in straightening again. My kidneys acted irregularly. It is possible that riding a bicycle had something to do with bringing on the backache. It was Doan's Kidney Pills that cured me. Since then my kidneys have been strong and haven't had any more pains or aches. I still use Doan's Kidney Pills once in awhile and they keep my kidneys in good shape."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

THE WOMAN

A Novel by
Albert Payson Terhune

Founded on
William C. de Mille's Play
of the same name

Copyright 1913, The Bobbs-Merrill Co., by special arrangement with the De Mille Publishing Co.

"Good night, Tom," drawled Blake, not so much as troubling to glance in his wife's direction.

"No," corrected Tom, "good-by."

"It's up to you," yawned Blake.

"Good-by," reiterated Tom, stamping from the room and slamming the outer door of the suite behind him.

The others stared after him in dull wonder. But an exclamation from their host suddenly shifted their attention.

"Grace!" cried Mark in surprised disapproval.

She had come, unnoticed, from her bidding place behind the inner door and was standing among them before they were aware of her presence.

"Mark!" she panted. "I—I heard what Tom said. And he was right. You must not."

"Please keep out of this, Grace," requested her husband in dire embarrassment. "You don't know anything about it. You couldn't possibly."

"I do," she denied. "I've heard."

"And—"

"Grace, dear girl," soothed Blake. "This is muddy business at best. It's no time for you to be here. You'll only soil those pretty hands of yours."

"It is the time for me to be here!" she declared. "I can see this from the Woman's standpoint. You men can't."

"There is nothing in common between your standpoint and that of the Woman we are talking about," protested Mark.

"Tom was right!" she persisted. "You must not sink to using this story."

The whirr of the buzzer interrupted her. At such high tension were they all that the sound made them turn as though to confront a physical presence. Nelligan strode to the door, conferred for an instant with some one outside, then returned with a slip of blue paper in his hand.

"The duplicate list of phone numbers from central," he announced, turning over the paper to Van Dyke.

"Good," approved Blake. "Now we'll get to what we're chasing. And we'll get it mighty quick."

Van Dyke and Nelligan were already poring over the sheet of numbers that the lawyer had just spread on the table under the lamp.

"Now, then, Standish," exulted Robertson; "we're ready to begin. One of these numbers leads directly to the Woman. We'll put a man at work tracing each one of them. "In other words, Mr. Standish," he demanded, "you threaten me? That's an empty threat. There is nothing in my life you have not already shouted from the house-tops."

"Well?" urged Mark. "Speak up! We're waiting!"

"At sight of the mortal terror in Grace's eyes, Standish checked the words that were on his lips. Turning away from the domineering man who so truculently confronted him, he muttered:

"Mark!" begged Grace. "Oh, I implore you—don't—"

"4400 Main."

"No, no!" reiterated Grace wildly, turning from him to Blake. "Father! You won't allow this? Please! For my sake—"

"Hello!" Mark was calling into the transmitter. "That you, Jennings? This is Robertson. Is that Standish story ready? All right—can you surely get in for the morning papers?—Last editions, eh?—All right—Yes—in the big cities—What's that?"

"Mr. Standish!" appealed Grace brokenly.

"Blake!" exclaimed Standish. "You don't dare publish that story without the Woman's name."

"In less than five minutes," retorted Blake, glancing at the clock, "it'll be too late for the morning papers. We'll take a chance."

"Remember!" answered Standish with sudden vehemence, "I warn you—" voice."

"Through the only person left who can tell us what the right number is. The phone girl who interfered with our wire just now. Nelligan, go down and tell Perry I want to see Miss Kelly up here at once. Bring her up, yourself. Now, then, Mark," as Nelligan departed on his errand, "it's up to you. If the house knows we've got the goods on Standish, fully twenty men like Gregg, here, will weaken and vote for us. And then we can jam the bill through. Get this Woman's name. Find the number we want. You've got the reputation of being the best cross-examiner at the New York bar. Show you deserve that reputation. Take this telephone girl and turn her brains inside out. She knows the number that will lead to the Woman. You've got to get it from her. Don't handle her with gloves or be afraid of making her cry. It's life or death for us to know that number."

There was a knock at the door. Gregg answered it. Nelligan entered, all but shoving Wanda Kelly in ahead of him.

"Here she is," he reported.

Leaving her standing there, he turned and ostentatiously closed the door behind him.

The girl looked about at the faces that confronted her on every side. Then she smiled. It was the peaceful smile of the kitten that has just emptied the cream jug. In her throat her heart was hammering to strangulation.

Mark Robertson, from his place at the head of the table, was the first to speak. His voice was quiet, his manner courteous.

"This is Miss Kelly?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the demure Wanda in her most respectful—and unnatural—shop-girl accents.

"Miss Kelly," resumed Mark, "you are the telephone operator, downstairs?"

"Yes, sir."

"You were at the switchboard a few minutes ago?"

"Yes, sir."

"Sit down, my dear girl!" beamed Blake tenderly, as he indicated the chair that had been placed for her. "We would like to ask you a few questions, if you don't object."

"Yes, sir."

Midway between Blake and Robertson, Wanda sat—waiting. And on the other side of the closed door leading from the farther recesses of the suite, Grace listened, breathless.

Blake's arm. "For my sake, you mustn't—"

"Grace!" snapped Blake. "I'm plumb ashamed of you. You're acting like a sick schoolgirl. Go to your room. Hello, Jennings! This is Blake—Hello—"

"Hold on, Blake!" ordered Standish. "I'll give you her name. She—"

"Wait!" screamed Grace, beside herself with pain and fear.

"Hello!" Blake was calling wrathfully. "Hello! What in blue blazes is the matter? You've cut us off, central. Wire won't work? Tell you it's got to work!—Hey!—What's that?"

"Out of order?—And I haven't sixty seconds to wait! I must!—What?"

"Oh, a lot of good your being sorry does!—Say!—Who am I talking to, anyway?—Miss Kelly? Well—I'll be—!"

Blake dropped the receiver on to its hook and set down the instrument, with the most profane bang ever heard. "A damn without words," Nelligan afterward called it. Jim glanced again at his watch.

"Gentlemen," he announced with dangerous calm, "we're too late. Miss Kelly has seen fit to interfere. They'll have gone to press by now."

"Mr. Standish," cut in Van Dyke's suave voice, "you were about to say—"

"I've changed my mind," replied Standish, with a covert glance at Grace, who was leaning for support on a corner of the desk. "Good night, gentlemen."

He left the suite. Grace, more dead than alive, made her way blindly across the library to the door leading to her own rooms.

The others stood staring at one another. Downstairs Wanda Kelly smiled beatifically to herself and fluffed out a strand of her hair that had strayed over her forehead.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Third Degree.

"Miss Kelly," began Mark, after a full minute of a silence that hit into Wanda's very nerves, "you say you were at the switchboard downstairs a few moments ago?"

"Yes, sir."

"While I was talking to the Associated Press office?"

"How can I tell, sir?" she asked with smiling helplessness. "You know we're not allowed to listen to conversations over the wire."

"But you connected me when I called up 4400 Main just now?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"H'm! You remember that, do you? Well, that is the number of the Associated Press office. I called up Jennings, the manager. I talked with him a minute. Then he wanted to speak with Mr. Blake."

"Yes, sir?" asked Wanda, who had been following his recital with the wide-eyed delighted interest of a child listening to a wondrous fairy tale.

"Mr. Blake took the telephone instrument from my hands," pursued Mark, unheeding, "and spoke into it."

Wanda turned slowly and gazed upon Blake in pleased amazement that he could have performed so sensational a feat as Mark had just described. Then she looked back at Mark as though unwilling to miss a single word of such an enthralling narrative.

"But," continued Mark, "when he tried to speak to Jennings he found the connection had suddenly been severed."

"Oh!"

"There was a world of sympathetic regret in her exclamation.

"He was told," said Mark slowly, "he was told—by you, Miss Kelly—that the line was out of order."

"Oh, yes!" she cried brightly. "And that must have been why the connection was cut off. What a shame! Just when he wanted to talk, too!"

"I suppose," said Mark carelessly, "if the line had got out of order, the manager's office would know of it by this time."

"Oh, yes."

"I wish to express to you my deep appreciation for the great service which you have rendered me in freeing me from my terrible appetite and craving for liquor."

"I admit that I was skeptical about your ability to drive the alcoholic poison from my system for I had been a confirmed drinker for several years, drinking large amounts of whiskey daily, and I had wasted $5,000 in four years. This great expense and my extreme critical condition brought me to a realization of the awful path I was treading so I called at your Institute with little hope that you could do anything for me. It is with gratitude that I write you today to tell you that my mind is clear, I feel certain in my actions, and am very much improved in every way."

"I can positively say that I have absolutely no desire for drink. Whiskey is repulsive to me as much in thought as in reality."

"I unhesitatingly recommend others who are bound by the shackles of alcohol to go to the Neal Institute for treatment, for I have received many times the value of my treatment."

WOMAN SICK FOURTEEN YEARS

Restored to Health by Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

There was never yet a truly great man that was not at the same time truly virtuous.—Benjamin Franklin.

Backache is so deceptive.
It comes and goes—keeps you

Learn the cause—then cure it.
Possibly it's weak kidneys.
That's why Doan's Kidney Pills
are so effective.

They're especially for weak or disordered kidneys.

Here's a Janesville case.
Lewis Gower, decorator, 1214 Mineral Point Ave., Janesville, Wis. says:

"Handling paints and turpentine probably started my kidney trouble, and I had severe attacks of pain through my loins. When I bent over I had trouble in straightening again. My kidneys acted irregularly. It is possible that riding a bicycle had something to do with bringing on the backache. It was Doan's Kidney Pills that cured me. Since then my kidneys have been strong and haven't had any more pains or aches. I still use Doan's Kidney Pills once in while and they keep my kidneys in good shape."

WOMAN

A Novel by
Albert Payson Terhune

Founded on
William C. de Mille's Play
of the same name

Copyright 1912, The Bobbs-Merrill Co., by special arrangement with the De Mille Publishing Co.

"Good night, Tom," drawled Blake, not so much as troubling to glance in his wife's direction.

"No," corrected Tom, "good-by."

"Good-by," reiterated Tom, stamping from the room and slamming the outer door of the suite behind him.

The others stared after him in dull wonder. But an exclamation from their host suddenly shifted their attention.

"Grace!" cried Mark in surprised disapproval.

She had come, unnoticed, from her hiding place behind the inner door,
and was standing among them before they were aware of her presence.

"Mark!" she panted. "I heard
what Tom said. And he was right.
You must not—"

"Please keep out of this, Grace," requested her husband in dire embarrassment. "You don't know anything about it. You couldn't possibly—"

"I do," she denied. "I've heard
And—"

"Grace, dear girl," soothed Blake.
"This is muddy business at best. It's no time for you to be here. You'll only soil those pretty hands of yours."

"It is the time for me to be here!"
she declared. "I can see this from the Woman's standpoint. You men can't."

"There is nothing in common between your standpoint and that of the Woman we are talking about," protested Mark.

"Tom was right!" she persisted.
"You must not sink to using this story,
if—"

The whirr of the buzzer interrupted her. At such high tension were they all that the sound made them turn as though to confront a physical presence. Neligan strode to the door, conferred for an instant with some one outside, then returned with a slip of blue paper in his hand.

"The duplicate list of phone numbers from central," he announced,
turning over the paper to Van Dyke.

"Good," approved Blake. "Now we'll get to what we're chasing. And we'll get it mighty quick."

Van Dyke and Neligan were already poreing over the sheet of numbers that the lawyer had just spread on the table under the lamp.

"Now, then, Standish," exulted Robertson; "we're ready to begin. One of these numbers leads directly to the tracing each one of them. In a few want. And when we find the Woman life and in yours."

It was Standish who broke the mo-

"Very well, Robertson," he said calmly. "I've done what I promised to do. And I have failed. You drive me now to the use of your own

posure with exposure."

"No, no!" moaned Grace, incoherent with fear.

Mark Robertson had caught up Standish's defiance and had stepped forward to confront him.

"In other words, Mr. Standish," he demanded, "you threaten me? That's an empty threat. There is nothing in ish, meeting Mark's scornful glare with unconcern.

him bluff. I'll call him. Mr. Standish, weapon that I use. If you know anything against me, tell it here and now."

Here, in my wife's presence. You know our cards. Show yours."

Standish's gaze strayed, as if by chance, to Grace's ghastly face.

"Well," urged Mark. "Speak up!
We're waiting!"

At sight of the mortal terror in Grace's eyes, Standish checked the words that were on his lips. Turning away from the domineering man who so truculently confronted him, he mut-

"I'll choose my own time!"

"I thought so!" scoffed Mark.

"Good!" asserted Robertson, catching up the telephone. "Hello! Give

"Mark!" begged Grace. "Oh, I implore you—don't—"

"4400 Main."

"No, no!" reiterated Grace wildly,
turning from him to Blake. "Father!
You won't allow this? Please! For my sake—"

"Hello!" Mark was calling into the transmitter. "That you, Jennings?
This is Robertson. Is that Standish story ready? All right—can you surely get in for the morning papers?—
Last editions, eh? All right—yes—
In the big cities—What's that?"

"Mr. Standish!" appealed Grace
brokenly.

"Blake!" exclaimed Standish. "You

"What's that, Jennings?" Mark was

Mr. Blake. What do you say you want?
I can't catch it?"

"Blake!" continued Standish. "I warn you! I'll deny the story. And if you get the Woman's name you'll—"

"Deny it, will you?" drawled Blake.
"Hell! You haven't time to get a wire before they go to press. The story'll be all over America before your denial
can leave Washington."

"I tell you," Mark was roaring into the transmitter, "that I'm speaking on Mr. Blake's authority. Oh, all right, then! Hold the wire. Jim, he went on, turning to Blake, "Jennings says he won't send out that story without your personal orders. He knows your voice. He says if you'll tell him, over the phone, that it is all right, he'll go ahead. Hurry. There's only about a minute left."

He handed the instrument across the table to Blake.

"Father!" entreated Grace, seizing

Blake's arm. "For my sake, you mustn't—"

"Grace!" snapped Blake. "I'm plumb ashamed of you. You're acting like a sick schoolgirl. Go to your room.
Hello, Jennings! This is Blake—Hello—"

"Hold on, Blake!" ordered Standish.
"I'll give you her name. She—"

"Wait!" screamed Grace, beside herself with pain and fear.

"Hello!" Blake was calling wrathfully. "Hello! What in blue blazes is the matter? You've cut us off, central! Wire won't work? Tell you it's got to work!—Hey?—What's that?—
Out of order?—And I haven't sixty seconds to wait! I must!—Wait!—
Oh, a lot of good you're being sorry does!—Say!—Who am I talking to, anyway?—Miss Kelly? Well—I'll be—!"

Blake dropped the receiver on to its hook and set down the instrument, with the most profane bang ever heard. "A damn without words," Nel-igan afterward called it. Jim glanced again at his watch.

"Gentlemen," he announced with dangerous calm, "we're too late. Miss Kelly has seen it to interfere. They'll have gone to press by now."

"Mr. Standish," cut in Van Dyke's suave voice, "you were about to say—"

"I've changed my mind," replied Standish, with a covert glance at our wire just now. Neligan, go down and tell Perry I want to see Miss Kelly up here at once. Bring her up, yourself. Now, then, Mark," as Nel-igan departed on his errand, "it's up to you. If the house knows we've got the goods on Standish, fully twenty men like Gregg, here, will weaken and vote for us. And then we can jam the bill through. Get this Woman's name. Find the number we want.

You've got the reputation of being the best cross-examiner at the New York bar. Show you deserve that reputation. Take this telephone girl and turn her brains inside out. She knows the number that will lead to the Woman. You've got to get it from her. Don't handle her with gloves or be afraid of making her cry. It's life or death for us to know that number."

There was a knock at the door.
Gregg answered it. Neligan entered,
all but shoving Wanda Kelly in ahead
of him.

"Here she is," he reported.

Leaving her standing there, he turned and ostentatiously closed the door behind him.

The girl looked about at the faces
that confronted her on every side.
Then she smiled. It was the peaceful smile of the kitchen that has just emptied the cream jug. In her throat her heart was hammering to strangulation.

Mark Robertson, from his place at the head of the table, was the first to speak. His voice was quiet, his manner courteous.

"This is Miss Kelly?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the demure Wanda in her most respectful—and unnatural—shop-girl accents.

"Miss Kelly," resumed Mark, "you are the telephone operator, downstairs?"

"Yes, sir."

"You were at the switchboard a few minutes ago?"

"Yes, sir."

"Sit down, my dear girl!" beamed Blake tenderly, as he indicated the chair that had been placed for her.

"We would like to ask you a few questions, if you don't object."

"Yes, sir."

Midway between Blake and Robertson, Wanda sat—waiting. And on the other side of the closed door leading from the farther recesses of the suite,
Grace listened, breathless.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Third Degree.

"Miss Kelly," began Mark, after a full minute of a silence that bit into Wanda's very nerves, "you say you were at the switchboard downstairs
a few moments ago?"

"Yes, sir."

"While I was talking to the Associated Press office?"

"How can I tell, sir?" she asked with smiling helplessness. "You know
we're not allowed to listen to conversations over the wire."

"But you connected me when I called up 4400 Main just now?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"H'm! You remember that, do you?
Well, that is the number of the Associated Press office. I called up Jennings, the manager. I talked with him a minute. Then he wanted to speak with Mr. Blake."

"Yes, sir," asked Wanda, who had been following his recital with the wide-eyed delighted interest of a child listening to a wondrous fairy tale.

"Mr. Blake took the telephone instrument from my hands," pursued
Mark, unheeding, "and spoke into it."

Wanda turned slowly and gazed up on Blake in pleased amazement that he could have performed so sensational a feat as Mark had just described.

Then she looked back at Mark as though unwilling to miss a single word
of such an enthralling narrative.

"But," continued Mark, "when he tried to speak to Jennings he found the connection had suddenly been severed."

"Oh!"

There was a world of sympathetic regret in her exclamation.

"He was told," said Mark slowly,
"he was told—by you, Miss Kelly—that
the line was out of order."

"Oh, yes!" she cried brightly. "And that must have been why the connection was cut off. What a shame! Just when he wanted to talk, too!"

"I suppose," said Mark carelessly,
"if the line had got out of order, the manager's office would know of it by this time?"

"Oh, yes."

$5000 Wasted In Drinking Whiskey

WAS SKEPTICAL ABOUT EFFECT-TIVENESS OF DRINK HABIT TREATMENT. BUT SAYS HE IS NOW FREE FROM THE TERRIBLE HABIT.

Neal Institute:

I wish to express to you my deep appreciation for the great service which you have rendered me in freeing me from my terrible appetite and craving for liquor.

I admit that I was skeptical about your ability to drive the alcoholic poison from my system for I had been a confirmed drinker for several years,
drinking large amounts of whiskey
daily, and I had wasted $5,000 in four years. This great expense and my extreme critical condition brought me to a realization of the awful path I was treading so I called at your Institute with little hope that you could do anything for me. It is with gratitude that I write you today to tell you that my mind is clear, I feel certain in my actions, and am very much improved in every way.

I can positively say that I have absolutely no desire for drink. Whiskey is repulsive to me as much in thought as in reality.

I unhesitatingly recommend others
who are bound by the shackles of alcohol to go to the Neal Institute for treatment, for I have received many times the value of my treatment.

Your grateful patient,
O. P. SONGER.

The Neal Institute is located at 444 Cass Street, only one block north of the New Insurance Building. Consultation and advice free. Patients or friends are invited to call at the Institute, where the plan of treatment will be fully explained. Literature free.

A Shingle House—By John Henry Newson

Home of Character No. 155

JOHN HENRY NEWSON
No. 155

The walls, dormers, roof and porch posts are all carried out in shingles and the chimney is partially exposed upon the first floor and is of red shale brick. The body is stained green and the roof darker green, while the trimming is painted white. The second floor extends over the front porch, thereby increasing the size of bedrooms, while the foundation is no larger than is provided for an inexpensive small house.

The living room and hall take up the entire front. The dining room has windows to the rear and the kitchen has an ice room and pantry. Combination stairs lead to the second floor, which has four bedrooms, small stair hall and bathroom. Stairs from storage room give access to a small attic.

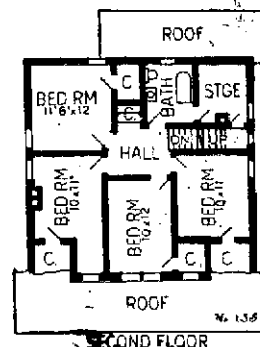

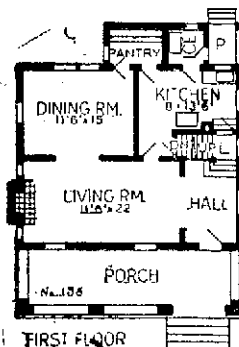

The interior can be finished to suit individual tastes. We would suggest oak, stained brown for living room and dining room, yellow pine for kitchen, with birch or poplar, enameled white, for the bedrooms.

The cost of No. 155—size 30x24 feet—should not exceed $3000, and it would be possible to build this house for considerably less under favorable conditions.

Further information concerning No. 155 or any other design shown on this page from week to week free.
